

Handout: Deuteronomy Lesson 11

And you shall not pollute the land which you are in, for blood pollutes the land. And no ransom is to be taken for the land for blood which is shed in it, except for the blood of him who sheds it. And you shall not defile the land in which you live, in the midst of which I dwell, for I, YHWH, dwell in the midst of the sons of Israel.
Numbers 35:33-34 (The Interlinear Bible: Hebrew-English, page 453).

The ritual for removing bloodguilt in 21:1-9 involves the elders of the town nearest the body of the murdered person taking on the responsibility of addressing the pollution of innocent blood spilled upon the land:

1. Elders and judges of Israel determine which town is nearest to the body of the victim (21:2)
2. The elders of that town provide a young heifer for sacrifice (21:3)
3. Killing the heifer near a free-running stream by the elders of the nearest town (21:4)
4. In the presence of the priests, the elders wash their hands over the heifer (21:5-6)
5. They make a declaration of their innocence (21:7)
6. They pray for absolution (21:8)
7. Absolution is granted by the priests (21:5; Lev 4:20)
